- know, it was just surprising to him, too.
- $^3$  He ended up leaving, going back down to the - cell. He didn't say nothing to me. After I
- said all that and he did that, he walked
- straight back down to the other cell.

I called Sergeant Lejeay back, and I

- said basically the same thing, you know,
- where is that in the handbook. I need a
- doctor. My head hurts. I'm all messed up.
- And she said, we're getting you a doctor,
- we're going to call one down here, you know,
- one is on their way. And she had left and
- went back down to the other cell.

And they left after that. I had stayed in my cell. I had laid down for a minute. I was pushing my emergency buttons.

None of those buttons work in that whole

B-D. You can push those buttons for as long as you want to; nobody is coming.

And about 1:30 in the morning,

Sergeant Drexil comes around. He's not identified in my complaint because I'm not suing him. And he had heard about what had went on. He wasn't no stranger to this kind of thing. He had come down knowing full well what had happened. He had came down there specifically to see how we were doing after this whole thing had happened.

And the other inmate had bruises all over him. I had my bruises. I had a big old lump on the back of my head from where the dude had been hitting me. My nose and my face was messed up. I had, you know, a line on my neck from where I had been choked.

And he was, like, I'm getting you guys a doctor right now. Ten minutes later, a doctor was there taking, you know, your notes, examining us, giving us Band-Aids and medicine and this kind of thing. She couldn't really do too much because it was in the middle of the night, so she did everything she could do. And I had got all my stuff tooken care of, and she had gave me --

- Q. What time are we talking about? When was this? What's the best thing you recall?
  - A. It was dark outside.

- Q. I'm talking about what month.
- A. November, I believe.
  - Q. Of 2003 or 2002?

A. 2002. This was like a month after, you know, the final situation of the property stuff. And, I mean, stuff happens in there like -- (INDICATING) -- you know what I'm saying?

So after that, I had been seeing the doctor regularly after that. She had, you know, did whatever she did to have me checked up, and I had my regular checkups and that kind of thing. That was the -- that's the occurrence that happened on that time.

Now, before this, I had already seen all of these officers act violent towards inmates except for Clark. I felt threatened by him, but I didn't think that he would go that far with it because he had just got there, anyway. So I did complain about him, but the other officers I really complained about as far as my immediate fear of threat against, you know, Rogers, Woolard and -- I'm trying to think of the little short cell until the next morning. I was so pissed, I couldn't -- I went straight to that phone when they let me out, and I called my people, the same people I had call 5 internal affairs last time. I had them -- I told them everything that had went on. they had -- they addressed it harder than maybe the last time, because last time it took them a couple of days to come and take 10 pictures of me. This time it took them --11 it wasn't 30 minutes after I got off the 12 phone, internal affairs was down there 13 taking pictures.

And the dude, when he came down, started talking to me like I was being aggressive and like I was threatening them in some kind of way. And, man, I was like, look, dude, I don't know what you're talking about right now. Because he was saying, you ain't going to jump on us, are you.

Q. Who was that?

A. I don't know his name. If I seen his picture -- he's a captain, though. And I believe he works up there, and he's in internal affairs or in the investigation department upstairs.

And he was telling me, you ain't going to jump on me, are you; you ain't going to jump on us, are you; this and that, that kind of thing, talking to me like, you know, like I'm a threat like that. You know what I'm saying? And I said, no, man, I ain't going to jump on nobody. I just need a doctor, you know. Take your pictures, do what you got to do, and, you know, let's get this stuff going because I'm not okay here.

And, you know, it was pretty much over after that. He didn't have too much to say. They took about four or five pictures, about six pictures, different angles, this and that.

And I had seen a doctor regularly after, I'm talking about every single day after that for, like, the next couple of weeks I had a seen a doctor. And I remember, once we were in medical, Townsend was -- had been the one to take me down there one day. And I believe that's exactly him, Townsend. And I said, look, I've been shot, you know. I was telling her about, I don't got no feeling right here in my leg, where they had shot me. And it was real bad. It's not that bad anymore. It was real bad scar tissue up in there. And she told me, oh, you're not going to have any feeling for, you know, a couple of weeks.

Well, I haven't got feeling back yet.

And when Townsend was up in there, she was kind of coming at me like, you know, it might have been my fault, too. And Townsend set her straight right there. He said, look, I seen the whole thing, the dude didn't do nothing. He came out of his cell, and they immediately jumped on him. After that, they shot him and kicked him and dragged him over to the wall.

The doctor didn't have nothing to say after that, you know. She was just filling in her reports and that kind of thing. And after that, man, that was pretty much the end of that whole situation. A couple of people went to the hospital that night. I wasn't the one that ended up going to the hospital. I wasn't one of them, anyway. Many people had been shot that
